

Responding with Care to Those in Need

A resource to help Jewish leaders and advocates identify community members in need and guide them toward help.

Make a bigger difference.

How To Help

After your initial conversation, the best place to refer an individual or family in need is the CJP Warmline at 1-800-CJP-9500 or cjpwarmline.org. It serves as the front door to all the services the Jewish community provides to those in financial distress.

THE WARMLINE PROCESS

- 1 The person calling speaks with a sensitive, caring professional who assesses the person's needs.

- 2 Callers are connected with case managers, programs, and services at a number of organizations, including:
  - Jewish Family and Children's Service (JF&CS)
  - Jewish Family Services (JFS)
  - Jewish Vocational Service (JVS)
  - Jewish Community Housing for the Elderly (JCHE)
  - Yad Chessed
  - Jewish Big Brothers Big Sisters (JBBBS)

- 3 CJP's Warmline helps callers access a range of services, including:
  - Emergency cash and food assistance for such necessities as food, rent, medications, utilities and car repairs
  - Financial counseling
  - Case management services
  - Career counseling and job search coaching
  - Public benefits navigation

If you or someone you know needs help, CJP's Warmline will connect you with compassionate resources and support. 1-800-CJP-9500 | cjpwarmline.org
